Anybody for Pavlova?

A Pavlova is legendary. The story goes that a Australian hotel manager, Harry Nairn, was a fan of the Russian ballerina, Anna Pavlova. So, when hotel's chef, Bert Sachse, baked a fluffy meringue and filled it with cream and fruit, Nairn remarked that this dessert was 'as light as Pavlova' – and the name then, allegedly, stuck. In this week's Rustenburg Herald Rev Willem Pretorius and Rev Deon Strauss of the Protea Park Dutch Reformed Church try their hands at creating this delectable summer dessert - you do not want to miss their kitchen shenanigans! Reaching for Idol Glory Rustenburgers have another reason to celebrate as one of our own, Rustenburg based artist, Zano Thando made it to the top four in the reality TV show, South African Idols. This talented artist has put Rustenburg, and North West as a whole, on the map by outperforming artists from all over South Africa with his beautiful voice. He is now Top Four - and he now needs your votes more than ever to get to the final. Please vote for him by using this link: <https://mzansimagic.dstv.com/show/idols-season-16/vote> or sms 3 to 37400.

November a wet month?

BONUS - RUSTENBURG - Rustenburg has been blessed with great rainfall figures for the month of November.

To date since Friday evening 176.4 mm has been recorded, according to the records of Charlie Graham of Geelhout Gardens Nursery in Kremetart Avenue. With an exceptionally wet weekend since Friday, the Rustenburg area might be headed towards 200 mm for the month.

At Geelhout Gardens 77.4 mm has been recorded over the weekend. Graham told Rustenburg Herald and Bonus on Monday morning. Meanwhile more rain has been forecast by the SA National Weather Service with the La Nina phenomenon still showing strong signs of an above average year in terms of rainfall during the next 12 months. Perhaps a rain meter might be a good idea for a Christmas present this year?

Reason for water issues in Rustenburg

BONUS - RUSTENBURG - Residents in an around Rustenburg have been struggling with water for the past few days, some have been experiencing low to no water supply.

The Rustenburg Local Municipality recently issued a statement stating the reasons why Rustenburg residents are struggling with water. "The Rustenburg Local Municipality hereby informs residents that one of the City's water providers- Magalies Water has informed the Municipality as well as other bulk consumers of high demand of water demand on the system. All of our residents in Geelhout, Tlhabane, Tlhabane West and Greater Boitekong with exception to town areas (CBD, Cashan and neighbouring areas) who are supplied by a different water service provider will experience low water pressure to no access to water," the municipality said. "As a result, the command reservoirs from which the Municipality draws its water supply are currently experiencing extremely low water levels," the statement concluded. Residents are once again urged to use water sparingly so as not to prolong the water rationing.

Roads rehabilitation behind schedule

BONUS - RUSTENBURG - Motorists using Dr Moroka Drive and Lebone Street will have to wait much longer before they drive there since the two roads were closed for a rehabilitation project which started on 19 October 2020 and was supposed to end on 19 November 2020.

According to the latest information received from the Municipality, the deadline to the rehabilitation had to be extended.

"Residents are hereby advised that following communication issued by the Rustenburg Local Municipality on 13 October 2020 in respect of a road rehabilitation project at the Tlhabane intersection (Lebone Street and Dr. Moroka) which was to end on Friday (19 November), an extension on the completion of the abovementioned intersection will continue until Friday (11 December)," a statement from the municipality said. Residents and all motorists were urged to be patient and the municipality apologised for the inconvenience on their part.

Cloud over integrity of the Matric exam

BONUS - RUSTENBURG - It is vital to know where the leak of exam papers originated from to prevent this from happening again. By determining how it occurred, it will give assurance to both parents and learners that the Department of Basic Education is on top of the situation.

This is the opinion of Nomsa Marchesi, the Democratic Alliance (DA) Shadow Minister of basic Education. The DA said in a statement that it will call on the Department of Basic Education (DBE) to provide a progress update on the investigation into the leaked Mathematics Matric exam paper. In particular, regarding the source of the leak. Preliminary investigations have revealed that further provinces, including Mpumalanga, Eastern Cape, North West, Western Cape, Northern Cape and KwaZulu-Natal, have also been affected by the leak, in addition to the leaks initially reported in Gauteng and Limpopo. "This leak has cast a massive cloud over the integrity of the Matric exam process and to ensure that the rest of the exams are beyond reproach we need to know how this leak originated to prevent similar leaks in the future. The Class of 2020 has already had an incredibly challenging academic year, and this leak has no doubt lead to further anxiety for Matrics on how it will impact the rest of the examination going forward," Marchesi said.

Anele Ngcongca involved in fatal car crash

BONUS - RUSTENBURG - Soccer fans in South Africa woke to the sad news on Monday (23 October) that the former Mamelodi Sundowns defender, Anele Ngcongca died. According to reports, the talented soccer player lost his life in a car accident that took place in the early hours of Monday morning in Kwazulu Natal. Ngcongca was just 33-years-old.

Jake delivers!

BONUS - RUSTENBURG - With Jake White at the wheel, the Bulls have ended a ten year trophy drought by claiming the Super Rugby Unlocked title.

In case you are unfamiliar with the Unlocked series: it was the best solution to get rugby on a roll again after the disruption of Covid-19. It was a classic shootout, with any of the South African teams having an equal chance of lifting the new silverware.

The Cheetahs started out great, as well as the Griquas, but the Bulls were the most consistent side winning five out of their six matches and collecting 23 log points.

The Sharks and the Stormers finished this short stint with 19 points each. The Cheetahs ended the series on 17 points.

The new angle is that these gained log points will be carried over to the Currie Cup competition which will start shortly.

The Cheetahs, the current Currie Cup holders will hope that they have enough in the tank to give the in form Bulls a run for their money in defending the title.

The Carling Currie Cup will officially kick off on the weekend of 27/28 November, culminating in the final on Saturday, 23 January 2021.

The Cheetahs will defend the crown they won in the 2019 final against the Lions, as well as the Vodacom Bulls, Griquas, Pumas, Sharks and Western Province.

In the opening round of matches the Sharks will host the Pumas, Griquas take on the Lions and the Bulls travel to Cape Town to face Western Province. The Cheetahs have a bye.
