Most rain in ¼ of a century

After a weekend of largely picking up the pieces, cleaning-up and calculating the damages, Rustenburg is more or less back on its feet again. Last Friday saw without doubt one of the quickest and heaviest downpours in probably human memory here. In just over 90 minutes between 82 and 110mm were recorded over large areas in and around town. Even the smallest of brooks all of a sudden turned into menacing rivers and threatened surrounding areas and property. This Mahindra pick-up was caught when the driver attempted to cross the notoriously treacherous Kremetart Avenue causeway. Emergency services were however on the scene within minutes to assist the driver and the vehicle. For more photographs of Friday's destruction and damage, see this week's Rustenburg Herald. BONUS - RUSTENBURG - Criminals absolutely love the festive season. People are in holiday spirits and tend to be a bit more carefree.

But 'carefree' should not be 'careless'!

We share a few safety tips in order to keep you and your loved ones safe.

- If you are traveling an unfamiliar route, make sure to plan your route properly ahead of time

- Try to avoid back roads as much as possible
- Always be aware of your surroundings
- Be aware of strangers.
- Most of us want to be good and kind, but some times a vehicle broken down next to the road is a trap
- Never give lifts to strangers
- Keep valuable items concealed
- Keep your car doors locked at all times
- When you go shopping, be aware that malls will be crowded, so plan accordingly
- Do not carry around large sums of money
- Park in well lit areas at night
- Be aware of the emergency numbers just in case
