Living our heritage

September is Heritage Month. During the next couple of weeks, South Africans will be asked to recognise and celebrate our cultural wealth. We celebrate the month by remembering the cultural heritage of the many cultures that make up the population of our nation. This, our living heritage is an essential source of identity – our traditions and history. Young Clarissa du Plessis is getting into the spirit of Heritage Month, celebrating our flag and our love for expressing ourselves through dance.

Five die in collision

BONUS - RUSTENBURG - The South African National Civic Organisation (SANCO) in the North West on Monday (5 September) expressed shock and called for a change in driver behavior.

This follows a horrific head-on-collision involving a bakkie and a light motor vehicle that claimed five lives on the Manamakgoteng and Northam Junction along the R510 Rustenburg-Thabazimbi road over the weekend.

SANCO Provincial Chairperson, Paul Sebegoe called for zero tolerance road traffic law enforcement and increased visibility on public roads.

“We wish to convey our condolences to families that lost their loved ones in the horrific crash and also wish the injured passenger rushed to hospital with serious injuries a speedy recovery,” highlighted Sebegoe.

According to Provincial Road Traffic Management authorities, all five people succumbed to their injuries at the scene of the accident that occurred on Saturday night (3 September).

He remarked that the extent to which speeding and reckless driving contribute towards the carnage on public roads is of great concern as most of the accidents including fatalities are preventable, i.e. if all road users observe the rules of the road as well as adhere to the prescribed speed limit. He appealed to motorists to avoid fatigue by resting after every 200 kilometers or two hours of driving.

“Authorities must also clamp down on drunken driving particularly during weekends to reduce the carnage on our public roads,” he added.

Expected fuel prices for September

BONUS - RUSTENBURG - According to the latest data received South Africans can expect significant fuel price decreases this week.

The Automobile Association (AA) on Friday (2 September) said that according to the Central Energy Fund's figures, 95 octane is expected to decrease by around R2.35, 93 octane is set to drop by around R2.18 a litre, while diesel is expected to decrease by between 77 and 87 cents. Illuminating paraffin will drop by around 82 cents a litre.

The Automobile Association said despite the recent rand weakness against the US dollar, the average exchange rate was still favourable.

New look drivers licence card approved

BONUS - RUSTENBURG - South African motorists will soon be getting a new look drivers licence card which is in line with international standards according to information recently received.

Cabinet has approved the replacement of the current Driving Licence Card to a one with more secure design features.

The current system has been in operation since 1998. In a statement released on Thursday (1 September), Cabinet said the technology has since evolved and it is becoming expensive to maintain the current infrastructure.

"The new proposed card will make the country's driving licence compatible with the International Information Technology Personal Identification Compliant Driving Licence (ISO18013),"Cabinet said.

In February this year, Transport Minister Fikile Mbalula announced that department plans to introduce a new driving licence card in South Africa from October 2023.

He said that following cabinet approval, the Department of Transport will undergo a procurement process, with the new licence card expected to be piloted in October 2023.

Close championship battles at SA Rally-Raid Championship

BONUS - RUSTENBURG - Close championship battles give the SA Rally-Raid Championship a new slant for round four and five at Nampo Park. With two events and four rounds of the SA Rally-Raid Championship still to be run, positions in the Production Vehicle category have taken on an interesting look.

The Toyota Gazoo Racing DKR Hilux FIA T1+ squad occupy the top four slots in the Overall Production Vehicle category, with Dakar stalwart Giniel de Villiers and Dennis Murphy a slender 15 points clear of second placed Guy Botterill and Simon Vacy-Lyle - 61 points, in their first
